PURPLE STAY HEALTHY

The unique apples owe their color to their native geography in Nyingchi, a small city in the mountains of Tibet. Apples contain a unique type of fiber called pectin, which has been shown to help improve digestion because of its soluble nature and ability to bind to cholesterol or toxins in the body and promote their excretion. A medium apple also contains about 4.4 grams of fiber, which is about 17% of the amount you need for the entire day. Additionally, apples contain a host of other nutrients, including Vitamin C and Potassium.
